KENTUCKY IRISH AMERICAN
WORLD'S FAIR BALLOT.

I VOTE FOR ADDRESS

[SIGNED]

Saturday, Oct. 24, 1903.

Above will be found the ballot for the Kentucky Irish American World's Fair Contest, which will appear every week. Save them and vote for your friends. Everybody has a chance to win a free trip to St. Louis. Remember that fifty votes may be cast by either new or old subscribers for each paid yearly subscription. Now is the time to take advantage of this great offer.

IRELAND.

Record of the Most Important of the Recent Events Culled From Exchanges.

The Rev. Father Bower, of Voughal, has been transferred to Carrigtwohill.

Edward O'Sullivan, a well known shipwright, died recently at his home in Queenstown.

King Edward and Queen Alexandra have ordered suit patterns of Morrogh tweeds from Cork mills.

William Gahan, of Killybeggan, died in a hospital as the result of injuries received while out hunting.

Mrs. Mary McSorley, a highly respected lady of Trillick, died recently at the age of eighty-one years.

John Lee, a farmer, died as the result of falling from his wagon on the road from Inchigeela to Macroom.

James Gorman, a resident of Cahir, was struck on the head with a stone thrown by a soldier and seriously injured.

Capt. Shawe Taylor urges a conference of several Irish Archbishops and Catholic laymen with a view toward placing Irish colleges on a higher plane.

Owing to the failure of crops this year the tenants in Galway are in a very distressed condition and have called upon landlords to reduce the rent.

Tenants on the Bunbury, Drummond, Lord Emly, Deane and Lord Gough estates are taking steps toward the purchase of their holdings under the new land grant.

Thomas Coughlan died in the Macroom poorhouse recently and $825 was found in his clothing. He had made a will in favor of a nephew who lives somewhere in America.

The pupils of the Dominican convent, Taylor's Hill, Galway, have won many successes in examinations this year at the Royal University, Intermediate and South Kensington academies.

Daniel O'Sullivan, an old and respected farmer of Sheshio, near Feenagh, dropped dead on a field near his home. He had been in ill health for several months, but his sudden death was a great shock to his family and friends.

Vandals recently visited the Abbey of St. Finan, on Church island, Waterville lake, County Kerry, and after breaking the chalice stone of the altar broke open several tombs and scattered skulls and bones in all directions.

Capt. Parle, harbor master at Waterford, and Peter Lawler, master of a dredger, were drowned by the capsizing of a small boat. Henry Hicks, a carpenter, who was with them in the boat, managed to swim ashore.

The Rev. Father Scollard, known in literary circles as Silex, a Mon, parish priest at Shanacuan, County Kerry, is doing all in his power to keep his people from emigrating. He has introduced carpet-making and weaving in his parish and has established a free library.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Murphy, of Cappa, Kilrush, have received the sad intelligence of the death of their eldest son, William J. Murphy, who died in the Philippine islands last May. The deceased was chief engineer of the United States coast guard steamer Palaman.

The Rev. Father Kavanagh, the historian of 1798, has been transferred from Limerick to Wexford. Before his departure for his new mission a deputation from the Sarsfield Branch of the United Irish League waited upon him at the Francis Convent and presented him with an address.

The tenants on the Duke of Leinster's Maynooth and Athy estates, which comprise 44,000 acres, have arranged with the trustees for the purchase of their buildings on the following terms: Twenty-five years' purchase, all arrears to March last to be added to the purchase money, September rent to be forgiven, interest on purchase money to begin this month and sporting right to be reserved to the Duke.

CARNEGIE'S GIFTS.

Andrew Carnegie visited the city of Cork on Wednesday and laid the cornerstone of the new free library to which he had contributed $50,000. While in Cork Mr. Carnegie was given the freedom of the city. He appears greatly pleased with his reception in Ireland. From Cork Mr. Carnegie went to Queenstown, where he boarded the steamer Cedric to return to New York. While in Queenstown he gave $5,000 to aid in purchasing a new organ for the Catholic Cathedral in that city.

EVICTIONS

Have Been Resumed on the De-Freyne Estates in Ireland.

While the Men Are in England Their Families Are Dispossessed.

Heartrending Scenes When Several Families Were Thrown Out.

THE CURSED WORK WILL CONTINUE

The eviction campaign on the De-Freyne estates in Ireland was resumed on Monday, October 5. In view of the recent land legislation and the sale of the adjoining estates to the tenants a week previous, the tenants on the De-Freyne estate were lured into a condition of false security. The last thing they expected was a visit from the bailiffs. One who witnessed the evictions writes as follows:

The way to the first family to be evicted lay through roads almost impassable with flooding. Several times the police cyclists had to dismount and lift their machines on the banks. Thomas Scully's, of Cloonreigh, was the first farm visited. The dwelling was a miserable cabin, the greater portion of which was given up to the accommodation of the few four-footed animals in the tenant's possession. The farm was five acres in extent, of which four were arable. The rent was $18, and there was three years due. The tenant is in England at the harvest and all the wife could offer was two years' rent. After a little delay this was procured and she was left in undisturbed possession. By this time a great crowd collected, who indulged in emphatic expressions of disapproval at the movements of the evicting party. John Fitzgibbon, Patrick Conry, Denis Johnson and other prominent United Irish Leaguers arrived at this stage and followed the evicting party during the remainder of the day.

The next place visited was Patrick Greally's, of Cloonagh. The tenant is in England. His wife stated that all the money she had in the world was $12. The farm is a joint holding with another, acreage five, and the joint rent is $30.75 a year. Greatly offered one year's rent and costs, but the agent refused to accept it, and having given directions to have the place cleared, proceeded to the other house, Thomas Kenny's, who is also at the English harvest. The house is a mere cabin, the entrance being a narrow causeway close to a cesspool. Mrs. Kenny said she was unable to pay and the bailiffs were not long in clearing out the furniture. The agent then returned to Mrs. Greally and offered to forego some of the arrears if Mrs. Greally would become tenant of the two holdings, but she protested that sooner than do so she would take her children and walk into the lake adjoining. When the bailiff was about nailing up the door Mrs. Greally rushed at him and tried to wrest the door away and the police had to come to the bailiff's aid and hold her. Two of her children just then turned up from school and, finding their mother in the grasp of the police, they cried piteously and endeavored to release her. The scene was painfully sad and the crowd gave vent to their feelings in groans and execration.

While standing talking to one of his men the agent, Flanagan, had a narrow escape from being struck with a large stone which was flung at him by a member of the crowd, which was at once dispersed by the police. As it was now 3 o'clock no further evictions could be carried out. As the evicting party were leaving they were vigorously groaned and the agent was treated to a fusillade of cabbages and sods. In the townland where the evictions took place the farms are very small and population greatly congested. Five families live on fourteen acres, of which one tenant owns one-third. Of these five tenants one has eight in family and two of the others have nine children each. The evictions will be continued.

Think of this, and in a civilized country. Women and children thrown out on the roadside, while the husbands and fathers are in England working like slaves to raise the cursed rent. This is a sample of English civilization.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing the Past Week—General News Notes.

Quite a delegation will leave this city Wednesday afternoon to visit Division 1 of Covington that evening.

Division 4, of West Duluth, is organizing its own degree team and has secured the paraphernalia for degree work.

Division 4 will initiate a large class next Wednesday night. Those who have proposed candidates should see they are present.

Division 1 meets next Tuesday night, and it is hoped there will be a big attendance to hear Newton G. Rogers, who will deliver an address.

The fair given by Company C, Hibernian Rifles, of Providence, has proven a greater success than was expected by the committee on arrangements.

At a recent meeting of Division 1, of Minneapolis, the Rev. Father Harrington addressed the members, telling the story of his recent travels in Ireland. The address was properly appreciated.

Division 18, of Providence, shows it has come to stay. During the last three months its membership has increased three score and the financial record for the same period shows a net gain of $100.

At a recent meeting of the newly organized branch of the Ladies' Auxiliary at Utica, N. Y., the degrees were conferred on a large class of candidates and the Rev. Father White made an address appropriate to the occasion.

The matter of creating a higher degree for members of the order, to be known as an order of knighthood, has been discussed by the National officers and directors, but its formal consideration has been deferred to the national convention.

Members of the order should never be without the emblematic button of the order. You never know when it will prove beneficial to you. Only a few weeks ago Michael Callanan, of Chicago, dropped dead at Cone, Iowa. He had gone West to make his fortune and died before he made any acquaintances. His body was about to be consigned to a pauper's grave when a Hibernian recognized the button, and an investigation followed. The dead man was found to be a member of the order in good standing, not only in the fraternal but in the insurance branch. The remains were brought to Chicago and interred with full Hibernian honors.

BUCKINGHAM.

Harry Bryant's Burlesques will be the attraction at the Buckingham Theater next week. A feature of interest will be the first half of next week in "The Stubbornness of Geraldine," a play in which she achieved success in the East. The engagement will continue Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and Wednesday matinee. J. H. Stoddard, the veteran actor, will present the "Bonnie Brier Bush" on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee.

MACAULEY'S.

That distinguished actress, Mary Manning, comes to Macauley's during the first half of next week in "The Stubbornness of Geraldine," a play in which she achieved success in the East. The engagement will continue Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and Wednesday matinee. J. H. Stoddard, the veteran actor, will present the "Bonnie Brier Bush" on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee.

MASONIC THEATER.

"Busy Izzy," with George Sidney in the title role and his big supporting company of forty-five people, will be the attraction at the Masonic Theater next week. Mr. Sidney is the clever comedian connected with Ward and Vokes for several years as the impersonator of Hebrew characters. As the star in the mirthful farce comedy "Busy Izzy" he has made the most pronounced success of his career. The production abounds in catchy music, gorgeous costumes, graceful dances and clever specialties, and, taken altogether, is one of the most popular entertainments on the road.

HOPKINS.

The Hopkins promises an excellent bill for next week. Capt. Webb's seals, headed by the sealskin band, will figure prominently among the entertainers. These animals have been taught many new tricks and are more interesting than ever. Miss Wynne Winslow, a soprano of high order and a woman of striking beauty, will be one of the many new

WOULD REVOLT.

Speaking at a meeting at Baliborough in honor of the Robert Emmet centenary, William Redmond, M. P., declared that the Irish would follow in Emmet's steps and free their country as the Americans did if they only had this power to do so. If they worked for their country in the British Parliament instead of Ireland, it was because they were using the only weapon at hand.
